FOREWORD

MR. FRED WELLINGTON AYER of Bangor, Maine, again brings to the New York public an unusual collection, this time in the form of Early New England Hooked Rugs, which are presented to you in the following pages.

Most of the hooked rugs described in this catalogue are actually anywhere from sixty to a hundred or more years old, dating largely from about 1825 to 1850. The earlier rugs were made by drawing woolen rags cut in strips, or lengths of yarn through a homespun linen foundation. In later days a coarse bagging or burlap was used for the backing of the rug, but the finer specimens were drawn through the old linen cloth such as many of the rugs in Mr. Ayer's Collection.

Being a native of the State of Maine Mr. Ayer has made his selections of some of the finest examples in that State, with, of course, a number of exceptions, from surrounding territories. The finer type of hooked rug, namely, the "Waldoboro" is well represented in this catalogue with examples catalogued as such, and many others which have been left to the discretion of the individual collector.

Special mention must be given to the fine Floral Hooked Square (No. 173), an unusual Pair of Wild Flower Rugs (No. 167), a Pair of Floral Hooked Rugs (No. 145), and the small, but delightful "Waldoboro" Rug (No. 7).

It is a rare distinction for the Plaza Art Galleries, Inc. to be offering this collection for public sale, as it is probably the finest gathering of the Art of our Foremothers, in existence.
